Iran still claims Khorramshahr

BAGHDAD, Oct. 7 (Agencies) — Iraqi warplanes Tuesday attacked industrial centers and airport bases in western Iran, destroying fuel storage depots, a ground satellite and a television station, the Iraqi news agency reported.

A communique issued by the Iraq military command claimed its forces had shot down two Iranian fighter planes and a helicopter. It also claimed five tanks, three personel carries and one rocket launcher were destroyed. Three tanks were captured intact, according to the agency.

The communique said a satellite ground station in Asadabad, about 200 miles west of the Iranian capital-Tehran, was hit. An airfield in the army garrison town of Dezful was also reported hit.

A silo, railway station and fuel depots in the neighboring town of Andimeshk were set ablaze. The communique said Iraqi jets destroyed the television station and fuel depots of Abadan, the Iranian oil refinery on the disputed Shatt Al Arab waterway.

Meanwhile Iran continued to deny Tuesday that its major port city of Khorramshahr had fallen to the invading Iraqi army. The official Iranian Pars news agency quoted two senior Iranian officials in the area as reiterating the city was still under Iranian control.

Western reporters who were taken to Khorramshahr on an Iraqi army conducted frontline tour Monday, reported that the port and most of the city was firmly in Iraqi hands. Pars quoted the deputy governor general of Khuzestan province, where the port is located, as denying the reporter's claim. The official who was not named by Pars also claimed that the Iraqis had been forced to retreat from the Khorramshahr area.

The issuance of the mid-day communique by Iraq suggested an escalation of the battle between the two Persian Gulf nations. The Iraqi command last week said it would issue only one military communique daily at night "unless the military situation warrants otherwise."

The air strike at Abandan, nine miles south of Khorramshahr, was the first officiallyreported raid on the beliguered city in five

The Abadan oil refinery, one of the largest in the world and which meets most of Iran's fuel needs, was gutted by fires resulting from air and artillery barrages in the first three days of the 16-day-old war.

Military analysts were expecting Iraqi troops to mount an offensive on Abandan once mop-up operations against die-hard Islamic revolutionary guards of Avatollah Ruhalloh Khomeini's regime in Khorramshahr are over.

Once Iraqi troops capture Khorramshahr and Abadan, they will have full control over the 120-mile Shatt Al Arab, which is the only outlet to the Gulf for Iraq's vital southern port of Basra. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein made full sovereignty over Shatt Al Arab the main objective of Iraq's invasion.

Iranian air attacks against Kirkuk, the nerve center of Iraq's oil industry 170 miles north of Baghdad, and the Kurdish populated town of Penjuin, 60 miles east of Kirkuk near the common border.

The relentless daily bombing of Kirkuk brought the flow of Iraqi oil through Mediterranean pipelines to a standstill. Iraq's oil shipments through the Gulf also have been suspended along with fran's exports as a result of the war, depriving Western Europe and Japan of nearly four million barrels of oil supplies a day.

The Iraqi communique said two civilians were killed and nine wounded in Penjuin.

KUWAIT, Oct. 7 (Agencies) - Jordan has massed 40,000 troops with heavy tanks and ground-to-air hawk missiles on its border with Iraq, awaiting word to join the battle against Iran, a Kuwait newspaper reported Tuesday.

The newspaper Al -Qabas quoting well informed unnamed sources in Amman. said the force was assembed after King Hussein ordered a general mobilization on Sept. 22, the day the war broke out.

Al -Qabas also claimed that Soviet freighters have been unloading war materiel in Jordan's Red Sea port of Aqaba in recent days, for overland transportation to Iraq.

Hussein reiterated his support for Iraq in a speech Monday and called on all Arau countries to follow his example. " A victory for Iraq will be a victory for all Arabs," the Jordanian monarch declared.

Earlier Monday Hussein ordered the mobilization of Jordanian civilian transport vehicles and placed the port of Aqba at Iraq's disposal. Iraq has been deprived of its only outlet to the sea through the Shat-Al-Arab since the outbreak of the war as a result of the heavy fighting along the waterway at the head of the Persian Gulf.

At the United Nations, Iranian envoy Ali Shams said Monday there would be no reprisals against Jordan for any help it gave Iraq in the Gulf war. The ambassador to Kuwait, who is leading the Iranian delegation to the current session of the U.N. General Assembly, told in a news conference the Jordanian government would eventually have to answer to its own people for helping Iraq. Meanwhile, in Damascus, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein came under press fire in Syria Tuesday in the first public criticism of his leadership from an Arab country since his Abandoning Carter?

Jewish voters may decide U.S. election liberal orientated and urban dwellers.

By Arthur Spiegelman

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (R) - In the final month of the U.S election compaign Jimmy Carter faces a Jewish problem that idential contest.

Carter, hailed only 18 months ago as the man who engineered the historic peace treaty between Egypt and Israel, has fallen from favor in the eyes of America's statistically small Jewish community which wields great political power in pivotal states such as New York that could determine the outcome of the election.

"If you are asking me if the Jewish vote could cost Carter the election in a close race, then the answer is yes," a leading pollster confided privately. And the Jews are not the only ethnic group that traditionally supports the democratic presidential nominee for whom Carter's onceengaging smile has lost its luster.

The blacks, too, have cooled toward him. In the last election four years ago they gave Carter 90 per cent of their total

But, according to campaign analysts, there is a marked difference in the perceived reaction of the two ethnic groupings. They believe the danger for Carter is that black voters may decide to stay at home and not vote at all on election day, Nov. 4, while Jewish voters may decide to cast their ballots for one or other of the president's rivals - Republican Ronald Reagan or the independent candidate, John Anderson.

The Jewish community gave Carter 75 per cent of its vote in 1976, but has now expressed its mistrust of the president, particularly on the question of the future of U.S. policy towards Israel.

But, Israel is not the only problem for Carter, American Jews by and large are Carter is from the rural South and, by Jewish standards, conservative on social Although Jews total less than three per

Soviets frustrated

Afghans resist 'stabilization Many of the refugees are young high school

By Anthony Hyman

LONDON, Oct. 7 (OFNS) - Soviet hopes of stabilizing the Government of Babrak Karmal in Afghanistan have suffered severe setbacks, with Soviet and Afghan forces unable to control movements of refugees and guerrillas alike across the long border with

The Russians have tried bribery to split opposing tribes, but this strategy misfired disastrously in September with the killing of the Afghan frontier affairs minister while engaged on a peace mission.

Loss of Soviet control of the southern borders has resulted from the deployment of all available troops in Afghan cities, where they face increasing difficulties in holding down a hostile population. Reports from the frontier area tell of bold atacks by Mujahidin guerrilla bands, daylight raids, and kidnappings of officials in Jalalabad and even in the heavily guarded heart of Kabul.

Afghan guerrillas are aiming to disrupt all commercial traffic to the Pakistan frontier fresh fruit exports are one of the few remaining sources of revenue left to the Kabul government. Some 40 trucks laden with fruit for export were burned on the Kabul-Jalalabad highway in 10 days at the end of September, resulting in serious losses to the Afghan and Pakistani truck-owners and likely ending to and college students, teenagers fleeing from forced conscription into the Afghan army. But there are also men and women with professional skills - doctors, engineers and others - of the type the Karmal government is attempting to keep inside the country by promises of better conditions and a refusal of passports on any pretext.

The southern borders are now more open than at any time since the civil war began, and many thousands of Afghans are taking advantages of this to flee into Pakistan before the winter snows set in.

Some of the refugees do not reach exile in safety, though, as booby-trap devices and mines have been laid along the trails and mountain passes to deter movements of all kinds across the border.

The bitter feelings aroused in this civil war are highlighted by the story of the death of Faiz Mohammad, the frontier affairs minister, who made contact with the influential Zadran tribe of Waziristan, close to the border-land where he himself was born. The move was intended as part of a wider peace

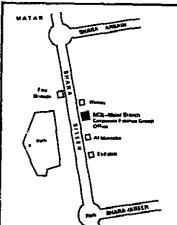

The minister swept into Pakhtia by helicopter with four other civil and military officers after careful negotiaitons and assurances of safe conduct. Inside the helicopters were a large sum of money and a ceremonial gift of three fat sheep - the traditional Pashto accompaniment to peace-making.

An eyewitness account says that at first everything went well and according to custom, with the shooting of rifles into the air to mark the arrival of distinguished guests, the slaughter of the sheep, and preparations for the feast. Only after the meal was finished were the five men killed - as tools of the hated Russians.

Pilgrims will be protected

JEDDAH, Oct. 7 (SPA) - The Ministry of Pilgrimage and Endowments warned Muslims and Arabs residing in the Kingdom against taking in relatives, who come as pilgrims to stay with them in Jeddah or Mecca.

It pointed out that pilgrims may stay with their relatives without objection provided they inform their pilgrimage gnide. The guide must know where pilgrims registered in his team are staying, so that they receive the necessary service.

The ministry requested guides to check on pilgrims' reception centers and make full reports about pilgrims who do not show-up at the ministry's Pilgrimage Agency. Guides receive lists of the pilgrims they will guide during the pilgrimage from the pilgrimage agency's bureau.

In a plea issued Tuesday the Ministry said these procedures have been adopted for the comfort of pilgrims. Muslims and Arabs working or residing in the Kingdom who do not comply with the instructions will be handed over to the relevent authorities to be punished.

It warned people who take advantage of the pilgrims' unawareness of the rules issued for their comfort, offer them services during the pilgrimage at lower prices than the official guides and put them in unfit accommodation. The statement said these unauthorized

Begin okays return of expelled mayors

TEL AVIV, Oct. 7 (Agencies) — Prime Minister Menahem Begin has decided to allow two banished Palestinian mayors from the occupied West Bank to return briefly from exile and appeal against their deportation, a military spokesman said here. Mayors Fahd al-Qawasmeh of Hebron and Muhammad Milhem of nearby Halhoul were deported last May. Israeli authorities said that the deportation had been carried out because of incitement by the two mayors against the Jewish state. Both men have denied the accusations.

The military spokesman said that Begin's approval Monday now cleared the way for the two mayors to appear before a special military appeals board.

The supreme court recently rebuffed the government for not allowing the two to appeal to the board prior to the deportation, as called for by military rules which apply to occupied Arab territories. The court, however, upheld the decision to expel the religi-

MM@Ogaden refugees facing food crisis

NAIROBL, Oct. 7 (Guardian) - The 800,000 refugees from the Ogaden in camps in Somalia will be completely without food within a week unless there is an immediate international effort to divert oil tankers on the high seas to Somalia, according to aid officials in Mogadishu.

The major food supply crisis caused by the disruption in oil supplies because of the Iraq-Iran war has hit several camps already. In the most remote camps in the southern Gedo area near the tri-border with Ethiopia and Kenya, and in the central Hiran area there are camps holding as many-as 60,000 people where their food stocks are now exhausted.

Very few of refugees have any camels with them to supply milk, fewer still have any seeds planted for food and buying and selling between the camps and the local people is the priviledge of a tiny minority of refugees.

CAIRO, Oct. 7 (R) - Egyptian Vice-President Hosni Mubarak will go to Washington next week with a message from President Anwar Sadat to President Jimmy Carter on Palestinian autonomy negotiations, an official spokesman said.

The spokesman said the message will deal with the autonomy talks due to start between Egypt, Israel and the United States. On Oct. 14 in Washington.

He said Mubarak will meet Carter and American officials to explain Egypt's views. Egypt broke off the talks in August after Israel declared the whole of Jerusalem, including the Arab eastern part, as its undivided capital.

Israel hikes gasoline price

TEL AVIV, Oct. 7 (AP) - Israel raised the price of gasoline to $3.15 per gallon on Monday, a new high for the inflationwracked, Zionist state.

The decision, effective Tuesday, was made at a meeting of a special economic committee of the cabinet, but the announcement was delayed until nearly midnight to limit the last minute rush to fill up at the old price.

The hike also affected other fuels and was expected to set off a ripple of price rises throughout the economy. The state television estimated that the increase would cost the average Israeli family an extra $25 a month.

A DOUBLE TEN MESSAGE

AMBASSADOR YU-CHIHSUEH, OF THE REPUBLIC OF CHINA

OCTOBER 10, the glorious Double Ten, is the National Day of the Republic of China. For all Chinese, it is an occasion for celebration and rejoicing and for rededication to the national goals of the Republic.

Established as the first republic in Asia in 1911 and dedicted to the Three Principles of the People advocated by Dr. Sun Yat-sen - National Independence, Democracy and Wellbeing for All People, the Republie of China has now a pro-. ud history of sixty-nine years. It is a history beset with difficulties and perilous situations - predatory schemes and outright aggtession from imperialist powers, warlordism, and Communist rebellion. Rising air fares and the world fall-off in tourism have not materially slowed the stream of visitors drawn to Taiwan by a wide variety of attractions.

Although Japanese arri- vals showed a slight decline in 1980, this was more than made up by the increase in American, European and other visitors. The year's total was expected to reach 1.4 million with foreign exchange earnings of more than U.S. $800 million.

The shortage of hotel rooms has been ended. Additional hotels continued to open through 1980. Competition assured some of the most reasonable rates in Asia. Houston finally does it -- tops LA 7-1

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 7 (Agencies) — A wild National League baseball season wound up Monday with the Houston Astros of Manager Bill Virdon thrashing the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-1 at Dodger Stadium in a West division playoff.

The division race came down to a season's ending series between the Astros, who led the division going to Los Angeles, and the Dodgers. Los Angeles, accustomed to late-season heroics and post-season play, came up with the big wins, forcing the one-game playoff. But the plucky Astros, who hadn't won a pennant, responded with seven big runs, limiting the boys in blue to only one. That broke the deadlock, with Houston joining Philadelphia atop the National League. They begin their three-game series for the NL pennant immediately. Philadelphia itself nosed out the tough

Montreal Expos, ending up with only a onegame lead over them. The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates were eliminated earlier on. In the American League, the New York Yankees fought off a late Baltimore Oriole charge to take the East. The Yankees, no

LONDON, Oct. 7 (Agencies) - Striker Justin Fashanu and midfielder Gordon Cowans were named today in both the senior England soccer squad and the under 21 party for the internationals in Romania next week.

Unless the injury-hit squad for the world cup qualifying match in Bucharest on October 15 is further reduced, Fashanu and Cowans are likely to play in the under 21 game in Buzau the day before.

Included among the forwards is Garry Birtles, currently involved in 1.4 million sterling ($3.36 million) transfer negotiations between his present club Nottingham Forest and Manchester United.

Scotland manger Jock Stein kept surprises to a minimum today when he announced a predictable pool of 19 players for next Wednesday's World Cup qualifier against Portugal at Hampden Park.

As expected, Liverpool midfield man Graeme Souness and John Wark of Ipswich return while injuries have ruled out Nottingham Forest defender Kenny Burns and Coventry goalkeeper Jim Blyth. More eyebrows were raised at the number of players in Stein's squad rather than the names included

The Scots boss has registered the required 22 names with FIFA, but only 19 will actually join the party when they gather in Glasgow on Sunday.

First Islamic Games close

IZMIR, Turkey, Oct. 7 (R) - The first Islamic Games, heralded as a symbol of Muslim unity and a chance for teams which boycotted the Moscow Olympics to show their paces, ended here last night as quietly as they had begun.

This western Turkish port was a far cry from Moscow as a handful of spectators dotted the terraces of the giant Ataturk Stadium to see the closing ceremony.

Of some 40 Islamic nations invited by Turkey, only 10 teams turned up in the end, including the self-styled Turkish Federated State of Cyprus — The Turkish-occupied north of the Mediterranean island.

Iraq and Iran were apparently occupied with other things. Egypt, Nigeria, Tunisia and Indonesia, all of which have a few useful sportsmen, never appeared. Turkey ran away with about half the over-

Against Holmes, 'was defenseless'

Manager urging Ali to quit ring

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP) — Muhammad Ali's manager, Herbert Muhammad, said Monday his boxer should retire. He also said he would not be involved in any future Ali fight if his boxer refuses to seek competent medical advice or receives a negative medical opinion prior to considering another bout.

"First of all, I don't think he should fight," said Muhammad by phone from his Chicago office "If a doctor tells me his health is endangered, I will definitely not participate in any fight. And if a doctor tells me he can fight, I'll still tell him not to fight. But if he insists, I'll tell him "I'll be with you' because of our long record of staying together."

Muhammad says he's been telling Ali to retire since before the fight with George Foreman in Zaire (Oct. 1974) and Joe Frazier in Manila (October, 1975) - both MELBOURNE, Oct. 7 (Agencies) -American Jimmy Connors got off to a good start when he easily defeated Australia's John Alexander 6-4 6-4 in the opening match of the $100,000 (Australian) Mazda Tennis Super Challenge Monday.

Connors quickly broke in the third game of the first set and again in the ninth game before racing to a 40-love lead and clinching

Alexander saved two match points in the second set but Connors managed to seal the match when Alexander netted while attemptng a dropshot return. Connors took just one our and eight minutes to take out the match.

In another match, Australian Paul McNamee upset American Vitas Gerulaitis 7-6, 6-7, 6-3.

McNamee broke Gerulaitis' opening serve and then won a tie-breaker 7-5 in the second set. Gerulaitis broke McNamee's first service, but the Australian fought back to level

In the tie-breaker, McNamee ran up a 5-3 lead, but admitted later that he became complacent and allowed Gerulaitis to take the set, with a 7-5 tie-breaker win.

Gerulaitis virtually handed McNamee the seventh game break in the third set with three double-faults. In Brisbane, Australian Davis Cup player Mark Edmundson, the No. 5 seed, dropped a set to unseeded Alvin Gardiner before winning 4-6, 6-1, 6-2. Gardiner played some of the best tennis of his career. His return of service and volleying was particularly strong.

"I've been saying he shouldn't fight because he's got nothing to prove anymore. I'm always scared of Ali getting hit. People who see me at ringside know I'm rarely watching and mostly praying during the

It was Muhammad who signaled to trainer Angelo Dundee last Thursday night that Ali should be stopped from coming out for the 11th round in his one-sided loss to heavyweight champion Larry Holmes.

"He was defenseless. I stopped the fight strictly because he was defenseless." he said. "I think he lost too much weight. He was dried out. He didn't sweat."

Muhammad said Ali, who dropped from 254 pounds to 2171/2 pounds for the bout, "reduced too fast because of his vanity. He wanted to look good, so he didn't drink enough water and didn't take his salt tablets."

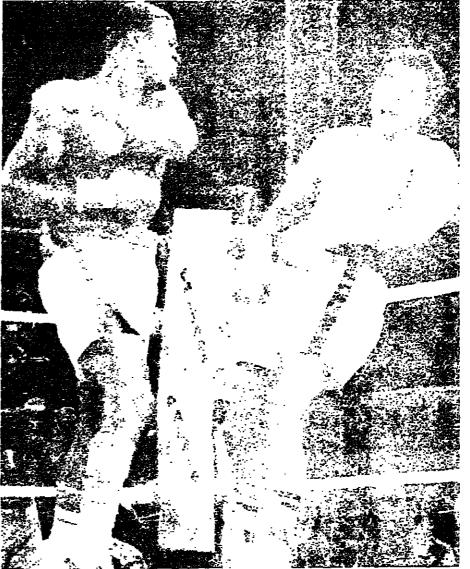

Muhammad said he didn't think Ali would fight anymore, despite the 38-year-old, three-time heavyweight champion's statement last Friday that he might fight Mike Weaver, the World Boxing Association

"Everybody's telling him not to fight. Muhammad said. "Everyone's discouraging

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, Ali was admitted to the University of California Medical Center for "diagnostic studies," a hospital spokesman said Tuesday.

Ali's condition is "satisfactory," said nurse supervisor Barbara Stone, who confirmed that Ali was admitted to the hospital Monday. However, hospital officials would not disclose why he had been admitted.

Another spokesperson said Ali had been released from the hospital on an overnight pass, but was scheduled to return Tuesday. Ali bought a home here two years ago.

WHAM: One shot here tells it. Muhammad Ali backs off after taking it on the chin from World Boxing Council heavyweight champ Larry Holmes, clearly on the offensive throughout their bout Oct. 2.

Khan causes squash upset

ADELAIDE, Australia Oct. 7 (AP) -Jehangir Khan of Pakistan caused the upset of the Schweppes $50,000 World Open Squash Championships here Monday when he sent number six seed Maqsood Ahmed tumbling from the third tound of the tournament 8-10, 9-4, 9-2, 9-3.

In a marathon 90-minute battle Khan, seeded number 12, put in a brilliant display of intelligent squash,

Khan, the brother of Torsam Khan the top Pakistani international who collapsed and died during the Australian Open in Adelaide last year, delighted a packed championship court gallery as he picked his winners carefully and put them away with uncanny accu-

The first game was highlighted by several early incidents.

With Khan leading 2-1, the referees twice warned the young Pakistani for bouncing the hall before serving.

This was said to be time wasting and on the second occasion the referees threatened to award the game to Magsood if Khan did it

At four-all Magsood came in for the same warning from the referees,

Khan then went to an 8-5 lead and looked set for a wint serving for the game, but he over-hit and sent the ball crashing into the tin giving up service to Maqsood. Magsood then picked up two quick points and at 7-8 appeared to block Khan's attempt to retrieve a boast.

Khan's appeal for a let was rejected making the score eight all.

Visibly upset by the decision he appeared to drop concentration losing the next two points and the game 10-8, but regained composure in the next game and quickly raced to a 6-2 lead. Maqsood picked up two more points but was no match for the cool, quick-thinking Khan who went on to win 9-4.

THE LONG WAR

Although the war between Iran and Iraq has so far been confined to the two antagonists, with Jordan nearly involved on the side of Iraq, the fighting threatens to assume dangerous proportions as Iran spurns the Iraqi ceasefire call. The fighting might well envelop other parts of this region.

Obviously. Iran feels strong enough to fight back and has indicatedit will refuse to negotiate until the Iraqi armed forces leave its territory. As Iraq will do nothing of the sort now, the war looks set to continue with varying degrees of intensity. Neither party is so overwhelmingly superior as to bring the other to its knees.

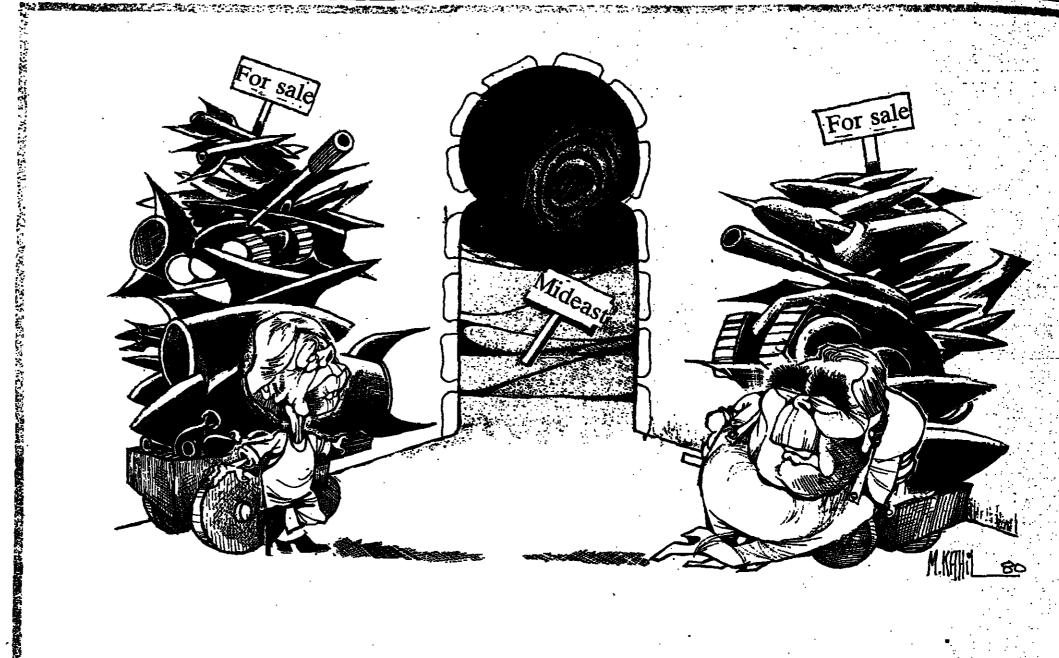

The implications are grave as such wars are apt to draw in other participants, including those in the vicinity and those farther away and with the wherewithal to fan the smouldering fire. They will not welcome the possibility that either country should so thoroughly trounce the other as to emerge the leading power in such a crucial area of the world. Neither the U.S., nor the Soviet Union will savor the emergence of a powerful, independent Iraq or Iran.

By now the Iraqis and the Iranians must be aware that neither side can score a decisive victory that will force the other to see for peace at any price. They must see that it is utter folly to continue destroying each other when their declared aims are so illusory already. They alone will be the losers. They alone will continue to become weaker and poorer as they devastate their industries, ports, airports and what little development they had achieved during the past two decades. Worse still, they are presiding over the killing of each other's best youths.

But to realize this they will need much more meaningful mediation than has been offered so far. The superpowers do not show much eagerness to stop the fighting and they would not take the risk of getting involved except perhaps by proxy, supplying arms or ammunition to continue the destruction. Iran has no friends in the West. Iraq has been too independent to be labeled pro-Soviet and thus is unable to call on massive Soviet assistance in pursuit of a decisive victory.

This leaves mediation as the best way out of the impasse. Another way out - the sudden and drastic change of government in either country as sometimes happens in times of serious national crisis — is less likely to materialize.

The Organization of Islamic Conference had requested President Zia of Pakistan to mediate on its behalf but it would appear that the timing of the attempt was not quite right. Iraq was advancing into Iran and the latter was too deeply wounded to respond positively to a negotiated settlement. It is difficult to talk peace when one's territory is being pounded and occupied. Another attempt, now that the war shows signs of a stalemate, might be more successful.

Somoza's blunder in gangsterland

By Paul Pickering

LONDON -When Gen. Ansastasio Somoza fled from forced exile in Miami to his friend and fellow autocrat, Alfredo Stroessner, in Paraguay, he thought he was safe. In fact he may have stayed alive longer had he remained in America.

For many months before the bazooka shell hit his car and the 25 machine bullets cut him in half, Somoza was a dead man. "It is rather like a New York gangster going back to Sicily and trying to get involved again," said a Paraguay friend.

Somoza was never in danger from the Sandinistas who smashed his regime in Nicaragua. Not even a mouse with revolutionary leanings could enter the "big village" of Asuncion without the cruel secret police chief Pastor Coronel knowing about it.

Somoza, like a modern King Midas, was destroyed by his own wealth. The Turkish and Italian families who control Paraguay's black market economy were terrified his $100 million fortune would upset their small but very profitable rackets.

Stroessner has been in power for 25 years and, amid rumors that he is suffering from an incurable disease, may have plotted to fill the vacuum he will leave. The ruling families could not dismiss the idea that the Somoza millions might be used to back a coup. One of these groups is almost certainly behind the bazooka attack.

Somoza's first mistake was to suggest to Storessner that he open up the country and employ the

New York public relations firm of Lawrence Paterson and Farrel Inc. To improve Paraguay's image. Somoza used to pay this firm a retainer of $7,000 a month when he was in power.

Stroessner was insulted by the suggestion, but it would be hard to see how even the brightest PR firm could improve his country's image. Paraguay is a society of smugglers. Most of the goods entering the country are marked "in transit" - this includes anything from Argentinian pasta to cocaine.

The drugs are then channeled to other countries but the rest, from whisky at $7 a bottle to radar equipment, are sold in the free-for-all supermarkets in Asuncion. But there is no free-for-all in the control of the various monopolies. Stroessner carefully farms these out to loyal retainers and then takes a rake-off.

At the top of the tree is his son-in-law Dominguez Dibb, who controls all gambling, the one TV channel, steel and consumer goods. Dibb, of Turkish extraction, also owns the newspaper HOY, which penned editorials supporting the Sandinistas against Somoza.

Next are the Napout brothers who control the illegal import of American cigarettes and the manutacture of Paraguayan cigarettes through the La Vencedora Co., which previously used Rhodesian tooacco, even though it was denounced by the UN. sanctions committee. Nicholas controls car and tire · monopolies.

Italian families like Barchini, Zuccolillo (director of ABC Colour, the largest Paraguayan newspaper) and Scarpini are in decline and the young members of these families are turning to drug smuggling.
Gen. Rodriguez leads in this field. His cavalry unit, like the air force, spends most of its time running drugs, and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency has identified Rodriguez's troopers as part of the Latin American connection. Not only is heroin brought in from the Middle East but there is also a brisk trade in Bolivian cocaine and home-grown marijuana. Rodriguez in particular did not want Somoza in the country because his presence focused American attention on his lucrative rackets.

For example, the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service has been investigating how in the past four years the town of Caraguatay has "lost" 500 residents, mostly girls. These girls apply to the U.S. embassy in Asuncion for tourist visas to visit Disneyland in Florida; they end up in New York as' illegal immigrants and prostitutes.

They are also thought by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency to be part of the heroin smuggling connection protected by Rodriguez and police chief pastor Coronel.

The strange aspect of this case is how easily the girls — and a former secret policeman, Americo Pefia — obtained visas. Pefia's visa was issued while he was under indictment for the brutal murder of a 17-year-old youth, whom he was said to have tortured to death.

Rodriguez and Coronel do not like outside interest in their affairs and have removed foreigners before who have interfered in their operations.

Polish strikes split unions in New Zealand

By Richard Long

WELLINGTON-The Polish strikes have split New Zealand's Feleration of Labor, in which a number of key postions are held by members of the Moscow-orients Socialist Unity Party. While other Western units movements were sending messages of support the Polish strikers, the New Zeidand federator kept silent. Federation Secretary Ken Douglas, a leading member of the Socialist Unity Party, after dismissed moves to back the strikers. "Polish workers do not live under the same with of repressive regime as exists in this country," said in a comment which infuriated modera

Bill Andersen, another member of the Socialis Unity Party, went further and said he would suppor any move the Soviets made to step in to restort the troubles in Poland and the Western media exaggerating them.

When the New Zealand Polish community up approaches to the federation to obtain a message support for the strikers, they were rebuiled Douglas, provoking the wrath of a leading mode ate, Tony Neary, secretary of the Electrical Work

That forced the federation's president, Jim Koo to step in. While by no means a member of the Socialist Unity Party, he found himself in a position of having to defend Douglas. He criticized Near for trying to split the union movement and insisted message had indeed been sent to Polish unionist But there were conflicting statements from Kox and Douglas over just when the message was sen what it contained and who received it.

Neary failed in his attempt to get more details the letter and pointed out there was every littely hood it would have been sent not to the strikers be to the central union organization in Poland, which government-controlled. The incident is seen further straining Douglas's credibility. He is alread under criticism in the union movement for public supporting the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Socialist Unity Party members received anoth blow earlier this year when the government expe led Soviet Ambassador Vsevolod Sofinsky for pa sing funds to party members at a clandestine me

ing in an Auckland motel. Douglas had been expected to succeed the ago Knox as head of the Federation of Labor, but a view of these incidents some observers are no expecting him to face a battle with the moder Neary for New Zealand's top union job. — (OFN

Nuclear graveyard haunts Texans

AMARILLO, Texas Encased in a huge lead capsule boldly lettered "Do Not Drop," the nuclear warhead blasted from its silo in America's scariest ICBM accident has been flown to this remote corner of Texas.

The damaged, nine-megaton H-bomb lies in a concrete bunker at the Pantex plant, the Westernworld's largest nuclear weapons factory, while scientists and Pentagon brass argue over what to do

Officials say the capsule will not be opened for 45 days. Meanwhile a special oil mixture has been pumped in to neutralize the high explosive detonator.

At the ultra-secret plant, 16 miles north of its dusty "company town" of Amarillo, all U.S. atomic and thermonudear weapons are assembled. The 9,000-acre Pantex site — run for the Pentagon by a civilian firm but guarded by heat-seeking rockets also acts as graveyard for "hot waste" from earlier U.S. nuclear mishaps.

Plutonium from four H-bombs inadvertently dropped near Palomares, Spain, in 1966, is buried here, along with debris from a similar accident two years later at Thule, Greenland.

The explosion of the Titan 11 missile in Arkansas - caused by a dropped wrench which ruptured the rocket's fuel tank — blew off a 750-ton silo cover, killed one man and injured 21 others, and sent the 6,000 lb warhead spinning for 200 yards. As congressional hearings on the disaster and a subsequent evacuation fiasco opened last month, Amarillo (population 127,000) fretted. This is a deeply patriotic, gung-ho Reaganbacking little community. But it has not thrilled to the arrival of a damaged warhead 700 times more powerful than the Hiroshima bomb. For two decades Amarillans have been trying to stop worrying and learn to love the bomb, and the task is becoming increasingly difficult.

Controversy has flared over a string of accidents at Pantex, a high cancer incidence, and nuclear waste dumping.

"If it's as safe as they say, why wait 45 days?" wonders Amarillo TV station owner Stanley Marsh. "I don't believe them. Idon't believe there's no radioactive leakage and I don't want it here."

Experts say chances of the warhead exploding are a million to one. Its plutonium core is surrounded by a ring of enriched uranium wrapped in another ring of high explosives. To trigger a nuclear reaction, all the outer-layer explosives would have to be fired at exactly the same moment.

Now two new nuclear projects may come to the Panhandle. The Pentagon is considering it as a possible site for part of the $70 billion MX missile system to replace the Titan. And federal agencies are drilling to determine if underground salt beds might store nonmilitary waste from nuclear power plants around the U.S.

"It's like living on the San Andreas fault," says Stanley Mersh." You're scared, but not quite scared enough to move."

The Titan warhead, once dismantled, is expected to find a last resting place alongside the Palomares and Greenland nuclear debris. This is buried in steel drums placed within concrete cylinders at Pantex, along with tons of other waste fissionable material, The drums have a life span of 20 years. Environmentalists observe that the half-life of plutonium is 24,000 years.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon says that Titan missiles, dangerous and outdated or not, will be around for years to come. They account for one-third of the destructive power of America's land-based rocket force, and there is no "near-term replacement" in sight. — (OFNS)

Arabian Press

In a lead story, Al Jazirah Tuesday reported an official spokesman as saying the Kingdom has not given any facilities to any foreign state on its soil. Al Nadwa led with the royal directives to intensify efforts to ensure the pilgrims' comfort during the Hajj. All other newspapers ran as their lead story the continued fighting between the Iraqi and Iranian forces all along the front, highlighting the bombardment of the airport in Tehran and six other Iranian towns by the Iraqi bombers. The United States' warning against the risks of the continued war between Iraq and Iran formed the lead story in Okaz newspaper.

All newspapers frontpaged details of the war saying the Iraqi forces have taken control of the Iranian port of Khorramshahr on Shatt Al-Arab. In a page one story, Al Riyadh said Jordan has put its public and private transport on the alert, to contribute to the war effort in Iraq. The newspapers gave front-page treatment to King Khaled's donation of $ 5 million to Queen Alya Social Fund in Jordan, to help it carry out its humanitarian activities. They also featured the weekly meeting of the Council of Ministers held Monday under the chairmanship of Prince Abdullah, second deputy premier and commander of the National Guard, highlighting King Khaled's stress on ensuring the comfort of pilgrims.

Editorials discussed Crown Prince Fahd's call for a holy war and expressed concern over the continued armed conflict between Iraq and Iran. They urged the Islamic world to intensify their efforts to contain the conflict and to strive to restore normal relations between the two countries. Al Bilad said the call for the holy war is the only way to confront the Israeli enemy. The call symbolizes practical action by the Arab and Islamic forces at a time when the Zionist activity has gained momentum to consolidate Israel's illegal existence in the Middle East. The paper declared that the Islamic nation's salvation lies in the application of the holy war, and reiterated that the disturbed situation now prevailing in the world is the direct result of an alliance among the forces of Communism, Zionism and colonialism.

Dealing with the Israeli intransigence, Al Jazirah noted editorially that the enemy has made it a habit to disregard any international stance that does not fall in harmony with his own expansionist plans in the region. The paper referred to Israeli Premier Begin's talks of last week with the European Economic Community Chief, Gaston Thorn, and said that Begin showed his frivolous attitude to Thorn simply because the latter urged him to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and give up all expansionist designs on the basis of the Camp David accords. The paper added that Begin has learned from his long experience that, though denunciations do disturb him for some time, they do not prevent him from executing his planned strategy in the occupied territory.

Al Nadwa dwelled on the Kingdom's efforts in the service of the pilgrims, saying the government mobilizes all its energies and potentialities to enable the pilgrims to perform their obligation toward God in ease and comfort. Although the pilgrim services reach their height during the pilgrimage season, the Kingdom continues to work throughout the year with new plans for pilgrims' facilities, the paper said. It added that the Kingdom exerts all its efforts as a religious obligation and remain keen on being able to serve the Muslim brothers from all parts of the world,

On the other hand, Al Medina expressed concern over the war and observed that the Islamic world has been rendered incapable of making any move in view of the absence of a joint formula from both Iraq and Iran that should provide a besis for the mediators to work on. It warned that the enemies of Islam are trying to revive the race conflict of pagan days, but hoped that the Islamic world would make sincere efforts to put an end to the war between to brotherly countries.

Ohuz said efforts must be made to keep the foreign powers away from the conflict and to settle the dispute within the framework of Islamic community. The Middle East is already under the thrust of challenges from Zionism, Communism and colonialism and, therefore, cannot afford to bear the big powers poking their noses in an Arab and Islamic issues, it added.

Al Your regretted that the big powers have not yet made any tangible move to bring the fighting to an end. although they are aware of the fact that the Iraqi-Iranian war would have its direct impact on world peace. The paper felt skeptic over the sincerity of the big powers which, it said, should not have connived at the events now taking place in this region which is politically and strategically important to the world.

Gulf states boost oil exports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP) - Saudi Arabia's Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said Sunday that major oilproducing states in the Gulf have, agreed with his country to boost exports to offset losses caused by the Iraqi-Iranian war, the Washington Post reported Monday in a dispatch from Manama, Bahrain. The Post said Yamani was interviewed in Bahrain after completing a two-day swing through the Gulf

Yamani said the United Arab Emirates, along with Qatar and Bahrain agreed to support the Saudi plan for increased production. Indonesia, a major Asian oil exporter, reportedly has also agreed to increase exports, the dispatch said.

The one question mark among the major Gulf states is Kuwait, which is expected not to go along with the Saudis. But Kuwait, which Yamani visited Saturday, will not oppose the Saudi plan by decreasing its own production.

Japan simplifies regulation for foreign exchange, trade

TOKYO, Oct. 7 (R) - The Japanese government Tuesday moved to de-regulate the country's highly restrictive foreign exchange and trade laws, but the effect is likely to be more of a simplification in the laws rather than any fundamental change.

The finance ministry here said the cabinet had approved ordinances required to enforce an amended foreign exchange and foreign trade law to liberalize transactions and to limit controls, with effect from Dec. 1.

For the foreign investor, the change means he may purchase up to 10 per cent of a Japanese company's listed stock before reporting it to the finance ministry, and total foreign investment can reach 25 per cent before the ministry requires notification.

At present foreign investors must report all purchases, while further investments are approved if so desired by the Japanese company. However, under the amendment the government could restrict such a move. The law also attempts to simplify export and import procedures by abolishing export certification and import licensing, thus facilitating sales in ! Japan, the ministry said, There will still be some restrictions on certain exports from Japan, such as those to Communist countries and "the finance minister retains his power in "emergencies" to suspend external or foreign currency transactions, and will continue to be able to set limits on exchange positions and restrict the interest paid on free yen deposits held by non Japanese residents.

The government will also keep its various controls over investments overseas by Japanese institutions. Despite the easing of some controls, one banker Tuesday said it would take a generation before regulations are eased to allow Tokyo to become a major financial center in the same way as New York Meanwhile, a leading Japanese banker say here that the yen, which closed trading in Tokyo Tuesday at 208.40 to the dollar, the rise to a rate of 175 before the end of new triangles. Rightist violence increases

Western Europe's little Hitlers rekindle fears of Fascism

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP) — Bombings y ultra-rightist groups in Italy, West jermany and France in the last few leen killed, have rekindled fears of a Fasist revival in Western Europe. But offi-() (ials believe that 30 years are: the believe that 30 years ials believe that 35 years after the defeat rganizations.

None of the rightist groups in a half-lozen European countries has any politial power, sizeable popular support or, antisde Italy, publicly-elected representaives. However, in recent weeks 84 people vere killed in a Bologna railroad station last, 13 died in an explosion at Munich's amed Oktoberfest, and last Friday, three lied in a car bomb blast outside a Paris ynagogue — all blamed on ultra-right roups.

Authorities in Bonn, London and other apitals suspect the most active extremists re linked and that in some countries, paricularly France and post-Franco Spain. hey have members in law enforcement gencies.

Jose Delthorn, general secretary of rance's biggest police union, disclosed est week that 30 police officers were mong 150 suspected members of the iltra-rightist Faisceaux Nationalistes

Europeans (FNE). The Council of Europe's political comnittee warned of a Fascist revival in a eport several weeks ago and noted increasing links between known neo-Nazi organizations. Anti-Fascist monitoring groups claim there are at least two contact networks centered in Belgium and Italy. These monitors believe that most of the members of the organizations belong to a new generation of militants who view the neo-Nazi revival as the answer to leftist revolutionary violence that has scarred Western Europe in the past decade.

Economic recession also has stirred the rightists to action. Some 300 Belgian neo-Nazis armed with clubs and chains marched through Antwerp Sunday pro-testing against the 900,000 foreign workers in the country.

The neo-Nazi revival centers on West Germany and Italy, countries where totalitarian regimes ruled less than a generation ago and where recent right-wing terrorism has been the most bloody. The worst attack blamed on rightists was in Bologna, Italy, on Aug. 2 when 84 persons were killed and hundreds wounded in a bomb explosion at the city's crowded railroad terminal. It was the worst terrorist atrocity in Europe since World War II.

Authorities blamed the neo-Fascist Armed Revolutionary Nuclei, hardline heirs to the "Squadristi" groups that helped Benito Mussolini seize power is the 1920's.

Last month, 13 persons were killed and more than 200 wounded in a bombing at Munich's Oktoberfest beer festival. Police blamed the outlawed Wehrsportgruppe

Hoffman, a 400-strong, well-armed neo-Nazi group based in Bavaria and headed by rightist Karc-Heinz Hoffman. In the Paris synagogue bombing, in which three persons were killed and a dozen wounded, FNE claimed responsibility and boasted it also had carried out five recent attacks against Jewish establishments in France.

FNE succeeded the Federation of European Nationalist Action (FANE), founded in 1966 by Marc Fredriksen, a Hitler admirer.

FANE was banned Sept. 30 after Italian police investigating the Bologna bombing named Paul-Louis Duran, an inspector of the anti-terrorist section of the French police, as a leading member. Duran was Marco Affatigato, a suspect in the Bologna bombing, was arrested in Nice where he worked as a dishwasher. Affatigato is believed to be a theoretician with Italy's clandestine rightists.

One of the most wanted Fascist in Europe is Stefano Della Chiaie, suspected coordinator of right-wing extremists in southern Europe. He fled Italy in 1970 after gunmen attacked the interior ministry in Rome and has been spotted at rightist rallies in Spain, where wanted extremists from other countries are reported to have been aided by sympathizers.

Italian extremists, such as the Nuclei and the Ordine Nuoyo, or New Order, banned in 1973, have been blamed for at least 188 killings since 1969 — more than the deadly Red Brigades of the revolutionary left.

Sources said one of the main contact points for neo-Nazis is Belgium, where the Flemish Militant Order (VMO) holds annual railies to honor slain SS officers. Members of at least 20 organizations, including FANE, West German extremists and Britain's National Front and two other shadowy militant groups, Column 88 and the League of St. George, regularly

There has been speculation that Graham reene might finally be the winner this year. _t the British novelist has looked like the vious choice for many years. This may have come a handicap.

Senegalese Leopold Senghor has also been entioned as a possibility this year. But the ct that this French-language poet is presies of some members of the academy.

of-the-road party participating in national elections for the second time, would draw between six and 10 per cent of the vote, according to the polls. This would put the Democrats in a position to hold the balance of power in the Senate. The coalition must win three of five seats in three of Australia's six states to maintain a majority in the Senate.

The surprising poll results have injected new interest in the campaign which has centered on domestic economic issues such as inflation, unemployment and cost of living. "What was widely expected to be a routine election campaign with a foregone conclusion - the return of the Fraser government with a reduced majority - has come alive with a vengeance," the Sydney Morning Herald said in an editorial Tuesday.

One of the core issues to emerge is the unpopularity of Malcolm Fraser, who toppled Whitlam from power in a constitutional crisis that still scars Australian political life.

A public opinion poll released Tuesday showed public approval of Hayden's performance has risen markedly against Fraser's. Hayden, 47, is a former policeman with an economics degree. Foreign policy has so far played little role in the campaign despite efforts by Fraser to portray Hayden's Labor Party as being soft on Communism and dominated by the party's Fraser has approved the staging of U.S. Air Force B-52 bombers in Australian bases and invited the U.S. to use western Australian harbors as home ports for the Indian Ocean

But the Labor Party has avoided making this an issue in the campaign, saying it welcomes the U.S. alliance, but does not want nuclear weapons to be brought into the coun-

Hayden has pledged to withdraw diplomatic recognition of the Pol Pot regime in Kampuchea (Cambodia) if elected, which highlighted a division in Fraser's cabinet.

Pakistan denies India supplying electrical gear

ISLAMABAD, Oct. 7 (AFP) - Official sources Monday denied that an Indian firm would supply Pakistan with engineering and electrical equipment worth $10,000. Newspapers Monday reported that Pakistan had placed the order with an Indian firm, Bharat Heavy Electricals Limited, for supply of the equipment to Pakistan's Water and Power Development Authority (WAPDA).

Clarifying the position, the authorities said that the Indian firm had submitted its bid in an international tender invited by the WAPDA recently. Negotiations were held, but so far no decision had been taken and the newspaper report was "factually incorrect,"

ROME, Oct. 7 (R) - Prime Minister designate Analdo Forlani has opened formal talks with party leaders about his plans for a new government as two moderate leftist parties moved closer together. Forlani, president of the Christian Democratic Party, conferred with leaders of his own party, Communist chief Enrico Berlinguer, Socialist Party secretary Bettino Craxi and other top politi-

Berlinguer said after the meeting that the Communists would remain in opposition and the degree of their opposition would depend on Forlani's policies. Craxi said he had demanded guarantees that a Forlani government would not be brought down by dissenters inside the coalition.

Forlani was asked by President Sandro Pertini to form a government after Prime Minister Francesco Cossiga's coalition of Christian Democrats, Socialists and Republicans fell on Sept. 27.

Cossiga's government resigned after some members of the three parties in the coalition voted againt him in a secret ballot on a package of economic measures. Forlani is believed to be planning a new center-left coalition of Christian Democrats, Socialists, Republicans and possibly Social Democrats. The Socialists and the Social Democrats were planning to collaborate closely in what could be a significant change on the non-Communist left.

Let's say you're in four spades and West leads a club. You win East's king with the ace, ruff a club in dummy, draw trumps, and try a the king and returns a club, whereupon West wins with the ten, shifts to a heart, and down you go.

The next day you visit your psychiatrist and tell him about the dreadful luck you encountered on the hand. After all, West could have had the king of diamonds --- in which case you'd have scored thirteen tricks instead of nine. Failing that, he could have had the decency to hold the ace of hearts - in which case you'd have made at least ten

The psychiatrist patiently hears you out and, after you rise from the couch, tells you that despite your bad luck you should have made the hand. He points out that it would have been better to let East win the first trick with the king of clubs, in which case the contract would have been ice-cold. Whatever he returned, you'd be in the driver's seat. At worst you'd lose a club, a diamond and a heart.

Reluctantly you agree with the man - partly because he charges plenty for listening, and partly because his analysis is unanswerable. You tell him he's right and that you were wrong in blaming the outcome on bad luck.

Iran hits U.S. on captives

Americans delay end to stalemate, Bani-Sadr says

TEHRAN, Oct. 7 (Agencies) — Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr has said that the United States does not want the problem of the American hostages to be resolved.

In a brief television discussion of the affair, Bani-Sadr said that the U.S was using the hostages as a pretext for its "attack" on the Iranian revolution. Iran is still holding 52 Americans hostage who were seized last Nov.

Meanwhile in parliament, President Hojatoleslam Hashemi Rafsanjani reaffirmed that four conditions set by Ayatollah Khomeini for the release of the hostages were "minimal" terms. In an interview on Radio Tehran, Rafsanjani said that "the Majlis (Parliament) must decide, after a serious study, if there are other conditions that must be met."

The conditions announced Sept. 12 by Khomeini for freeing the hostages were return of the late Shah's property, stopping of all U.S. actions against Iran, a guarantee of political and military non-interference and freeing of frozen Iranian funds in the United States.

Iran's diplomatic isolation, which began with the taking of the hostages is the reason for the United Nation's failure to condemn Iraqi "aggression," Iran's former ambas-sador to the U.N., Mansour Farhang, said Tuesday.

In an a interview with the Tehran Times newspaper, Mansour, now an aide to Bani-Sadr, said that to prolong the hostage issue was no longer in the interests of the nation. The issue should be resolved as soon as poss-

Afghans get free degrees

NEW DELHI, Oct. 7 (AP) — Senior high school examinations in Afghanistan, scheduled for next month, have been postponed indefinitely and students have been promised degrees without taking exams if they enroll in the government forces for a year, according to an Afghan exile source.

Afghan government soldiers have been reported raiding houses at night in search of youths for conscription into the army to replace deserters, the source said.

Quoting travelers arriving from their homeland, the exile source also said three separate groups of about 15 Vietnamese and Cuban advisers each were sighted in the western and northern provinces of Herat and Badakhshan. Western diplomatic sources in New Delhi and Islamabad last month said that there was no firm indication of a Cuban military presence in Afghanistan.

An India-based Afghan exile party, the Harakati Islami, quoted delayed reports from Kabul as saving that Sayed Kamal Abasi, a Muslim fundamentalist leader who was recently sent to the Soviet Union at the head of a 100-member clergy delegation, was killed by insurgents outside his Kabul residence after his return last month.

Afghan government radio confirmed Monday night that President Babrak Karmal will make an official visit to the Soviet Union in the first half of October.

An Afghan insurgent chief was killed and civilian houses were bombed in stepped up fighting in the eastern province of Kunar during the past week, refugees fleeing the pro-vince said. About 200 Kunar villagers arrived in northwest Pakistan over the weekend. The insurgent leader, identified only as Soviet warplanes supporting Afghan gov-ernment forces bombed another Kunar village, Sowkhur, killing five women and children, the refugees reported.

Local insurgents led by Muhammad Sanid lost two men resisting a subsequent assault by government ground troops, and killed 10 Afghan soldiers and captured two. Independent confirmation was not available.

Meanwhile, the leader of an insurgent group at Peshawar said Soviet troops have launched a major drive against Kheshm, an insurgent stronghold in a strategic area of Badakhshan province, northern Afghanistan. The town is astride a road leading to the provincial capital, Faizabad, and the extreme northeastern corner of the country which borders China.

Thirty-six Mujahiddin have been killed since mid-September, reported Maulvi Muhammad Younus Khalis, who claimed that 19 Soviet and 170 Afghan soldiers and armed civilian party members also lost their lives in the offensive.

Khalis, who heads a faction of the rightwing Hezb-I-Islami Party, said the insurgents captured 48 Soviet-made Kalashnikov assault rifles, four heavy machineguns, two

NEW DELHI, Oct. 7 (AP) - The first consignment of entiched uranium released by a U.S. Senate vote last month has arrived in India, the United News of India reported Tuesday.

UNI quoted official sources in Bombay saying that the "bulk" of the supply for the Tarapur Power Plant near the city, approved by the U.S. Senate in September after a twoyear controversy, arrived Sunday by Air.

It said the uranium was being rushed to the nuclear fabrication plant in Hyderabad. southern India, where it would be converted into "fuel bundles" for Tarapur.

Another consignment of nuclear fuel was scheduled to arive in Bombay on Wednesday. the sources told the news agency.

The Tarapur plant was built with U.S. aid and technology in the 1960's. India and the United States signed a treaty under which America agreed to supply atomic fuel to the project until 1993.

However, in 1978, the United States passed legislation banning the sale of nuclear fuel to any country which does not observe the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. India does not accept the treaty saying it is discriminatory. However, U.S. administration officials persuaded Senators to vote for the fuel supply saying it would promote better ties between the world's two major democracies and reduce Soviet influence in the region.

King accepts resignation of Martens

BRUSSELS, Oct. 7 (R) - King Baudouin accepted the resignation of the Belgian government Tuesday after intensive talks failed to hold the six-party coalition together.
Prime Minister Wilfried Martens offered the resignation on Saturday, but the king asked for a last effort to end a split over the country's mounting economic problems. A statement from the royal palace said King Baudouin had asked Martens, a Social Christian, to try to form a new government while the outgoing cabinet stayed on in a caretaker

Party leaders had been meeting Martens since Saturday's resignation offer to discuss a new formula for much-needed cuts in public spending. But political sources said the right-wing Liberals in the coalition called for greater cuts in social spending than Martens proposed. Kania 'insulted working class,' unionists claim

GDANSK, Oct. 7 (AP) - Leaders of Poland's new independent trade union movement said Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania was "unjust and insulting to the working class" in his criticism of a massive one-hour strike last Friday.

Officials of the "Solidarity" union federation, which grew out of the summer strike wave, wrote a letter to Kania challenging his assessment at a party central committee meeting of the "warning" strike. The letter also denied Kania's accusation that Solidarity leaders had backed out at the last minute on a decision to call off the action after the government agreed to let the leaders appear on television to present their case.

"We state that this description is based on information in discord with the true course of events," the union presidium, led by Lech Walesa, told Kania in the letter.

"We regard your assessment of the strike decision as unjust and insulting to the working class who have once again expressed their feeling of responsibility for the destiny of the nation," the letter said.

The letter signaled further confrontations betwen the Communist leadership and the independent unions, created under settlement of the summer strike wave. The onehour strike, the first head-on challenge by the unions since the summer turmoil, was called to press demands for higher pay and access for the unions to the mass media.

At a presidium meeting Monday, the Solidarity leaders discussed objections raised by the Warsaw district court to the proposed union charter, a spokesman said.
